On the Cutting Edge

Isn't it strange how Northeast is always being cut down?

It seems the rumors never go away. In fact, they get bigger every year. Headlines and exaggerations fill the front pages and the airwaves. People don't think we're cut out to do anything. It's just not fair.

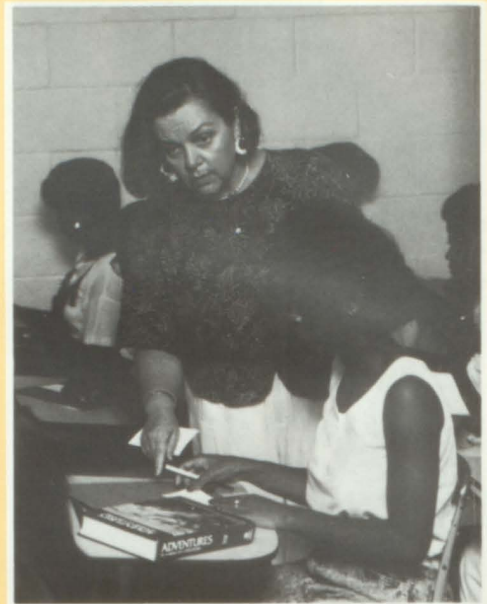

Northeast has many fine qualities — a student body that is proud to be at Northeast, a faculty that cares about the students as people as well as learners, and administrators that push all of us to be our very best. We have a great band, an exciting athletic program, and extra-curricular activities to fit just about anyone.

Cut us some slack! We're already special, but plans are in the works to make us still more special. The new math/science high-technology program, scheduled for implementation in 1989-90, should put those negative image problems to rest once and for all.

Then everyone else will have to admit what we've known all along — we're ON THE CUTTING EDGE. (Copy/Design: J. Battle, M. O'Neal).

Student Life

The "best years of your life" — that's what adults tell us the teenage years are. Well, maybe.

Close friendships and dating do make the time fun, for the most part. Of course, there are also 'down' sides to personal relationships when people are having trouble getting along.

We are getting old enough to drive and do things without a lot of parental supervision. But most of what we want to do costs money, and that creates another whole set of problems.

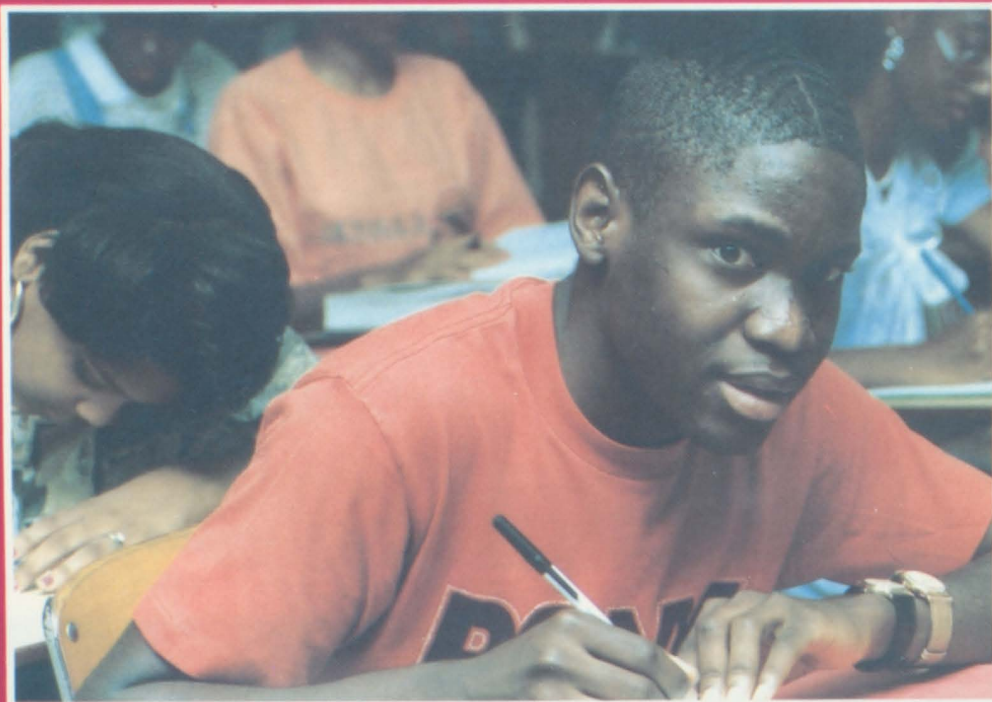

While school is still a dominant force in our lives, we are not just students. We have interests outside of school that make us complete persons.

The teen years are the time when young people break away from childhood and edge into the the world of adults.

Summer's too short; weather's too hot; but ready or not . . . it's

Time for school

As the parking lot began to fill and the school grounds began to come alive with conversation, students were off to a new and fresh start for the year. Friends reunited and picked up on each other's lives almost where they had left off the spring before.

There were mixed feelings. Some students were happy to return to school to see friends and teachers they had missed over the summer.

Seniors were already looking forward to graduation. Senior Lynette Veal said, "I'm so happy this is my last year of school, but I know I'm going to miss school and my friends."

A few had in mind to get a good start on making acceptable grades, but most admitted they weren't really ready for the playing to end and the work to start.

Students had prepared for school by gathering books, supplies and new clothes. Senior Kenneth Wilder psyched himself up. He said, "The first day back I built myself up, drank two cups of coffee, and then I came to school!"

Some students had improving grade point averages on their mind, but freshman Delphia Brynn said her goal was "to learn more independence and responsibility so that I will be prepared for college life and then life as an adult."

Some of those who returned felt the loss of last year's seniors. Senior Angela Rooks said, "Starting back to school this year wasn't anything like last year. A lot of my friends graduated, and I miss them all. The school just doesn't seem complete." (Copy/design by T. McCoy, J. Rudin).

Keeping an eye on fashion

It doesn't matter what you wear, just as long as you are there. That could have been the motto for the year. Everyone was out to make their own individual fashion statements, trying to set trends instead of following them.

It seemed to be a sort of race to see who could impress the others first. This was easy to see in the array of colors and designs being worn.

The first few weeks, the casual look of tee-shirts and comfortable jeans were the most common sights.

As the weather cooled off, Raiderettes started strutting their stuff by wearing wild, eye-catching jewelry and bright, baggy outfits, while scarves dazzled the eyes with soft, smooth colors to coordinate with the rest of the outfit.

The Raiders sported Nike Air tennis shoes, the faithful jeans, topped off with a huge selection of loose, cool tops and soft baggy sweaters.

Jeans, in general, were big — especially the new, "flip-top" jeans and the old favorites, worn out and hole-y.

Hairstyles definitely played a part in the fashion news this year. The styles ranged from the short, glossy curls to loose waves to the silky long straight look.

Fashion —

Professional buyers from stores at the Mall had a variety of thoughts about what was in. Stuart's said that Carnegay sweaters and scarves are definitely the look; Body Shop insisted that suede and leather were coming back. As for colors, Stuart's favored red and black, while Body Shop was pushing purple, teal green, and electric blue. Both thought gold would be popular. Chess King said that the leather Bomber jackets and turtle-necks were hot; the colors would be black and army green.

Whether students created their own style or followed someone else, fashion was definitely a hot topic. (Copy/design by K. Mullis, A. Bailey).

Time off from studies, responsibilities, though temporary, makes Friday feeling

Something special

Weekends! Just the word puts a smile on the face.

Students and teachers alike work hard throughout the week, knowing that Friday will come eventually.

Many student complain that there is nothing to do on the weekends in Macon. Weekend activities for students are just about limited to Northeast games (when they're at home), the movies, the Mall, or parties.

Senior DeeDee Adams said, "There's nothing to do, but go to the movies, when a new one's out. But what do you do the next weekend? Go see it again."

Although some students may not necessarily enjoy working at their parttime jobs on the weekend, at least they are making money, say seniors Aris Lucas, Cynthia Brown, and Yvonne Stephens. Cynthia said, "My weekends belong to Wendy's."

Teachers also enjoy the weekend. After allotting some time for grading papers and planning for the week ahead, teachers spend the weekends with family and friends.

Coach Walter Daniely said, "I like having friends over, putting some meat on the grill and playing a good game of Bid-Wisk."

Mrs. Judy Fultz, English teacher and band parent, said, "On Friday Nights I am definitely at the (Northeast) games."

Mrs. Sydney Chalfa, English teacher and mother of small children, said, "I love to go to Toys R Us and browse."

Students who give up free time to 'make the bread' usually find that parttime jobs are

Mostly work, little play

After hours of education, some students challenge the working world.

Working students range from sophomores to seniors. Seniors say they work to pay for all of the 'necessities' of the senior year. Juniors are saving money for their senior year and to have some spending money. Sophomores probably are thinking more about having spending money.

The jobs students are most likely to find are those in restaurants, supermarkets, hospitals, and pharmacies in the area.

Some feel that their job affects their performance in school, yet they keep the jobs because they feel they must. Others say that it doesn't affect their performance, or social life, for that matter, and is a great way to spend leisure time.

Junior Felicia Mathis said, "I enjoy my job because I get to meet a lot of people."

Being able to manage both education and jobs is a great challenge to young minds. If a student can handle both successfully, then that student has good planning skills and a sense of responsibility.

Junior Charles Spry said, "You meet a lot of new people, you learn responsibility, and you learn the value of a dollar and how to balance your money." (Copy/design by C. Hoges, G. Seabrooks.)

Single serving lines in both buildings create a lunchbreak that is a case of

Hurry up and wait

Returning students who enjoyed eating in the school cafeterias last year found something had changed over the summer. Only one serving line was operating in each cafeteria, and there were fewer workers to prepare and serve the food.

"The staff was cut because there was not enough participation," said Mrs. Burnice Grant, manager of the Mark Smith lunchroom. The reduction in staff forced the closing of one serving line in each building, since there were not enough workers to keep both going.

Students who patronize the school cafeteria were unhappy with the arrangement primarily because it cut down on study time in the library or on social time.

Freshman Valerie Germany said, "If you are an academic student and also a believer of eating proper meals daily, this one-line system causes a problem."

And there were other problems.

Senior Janice Moore said, "Many students are late to class and are assigned detention as a result of the long lines."

Sophomore Candice Hughes said, "With one line we have no choice but to run to lunch."

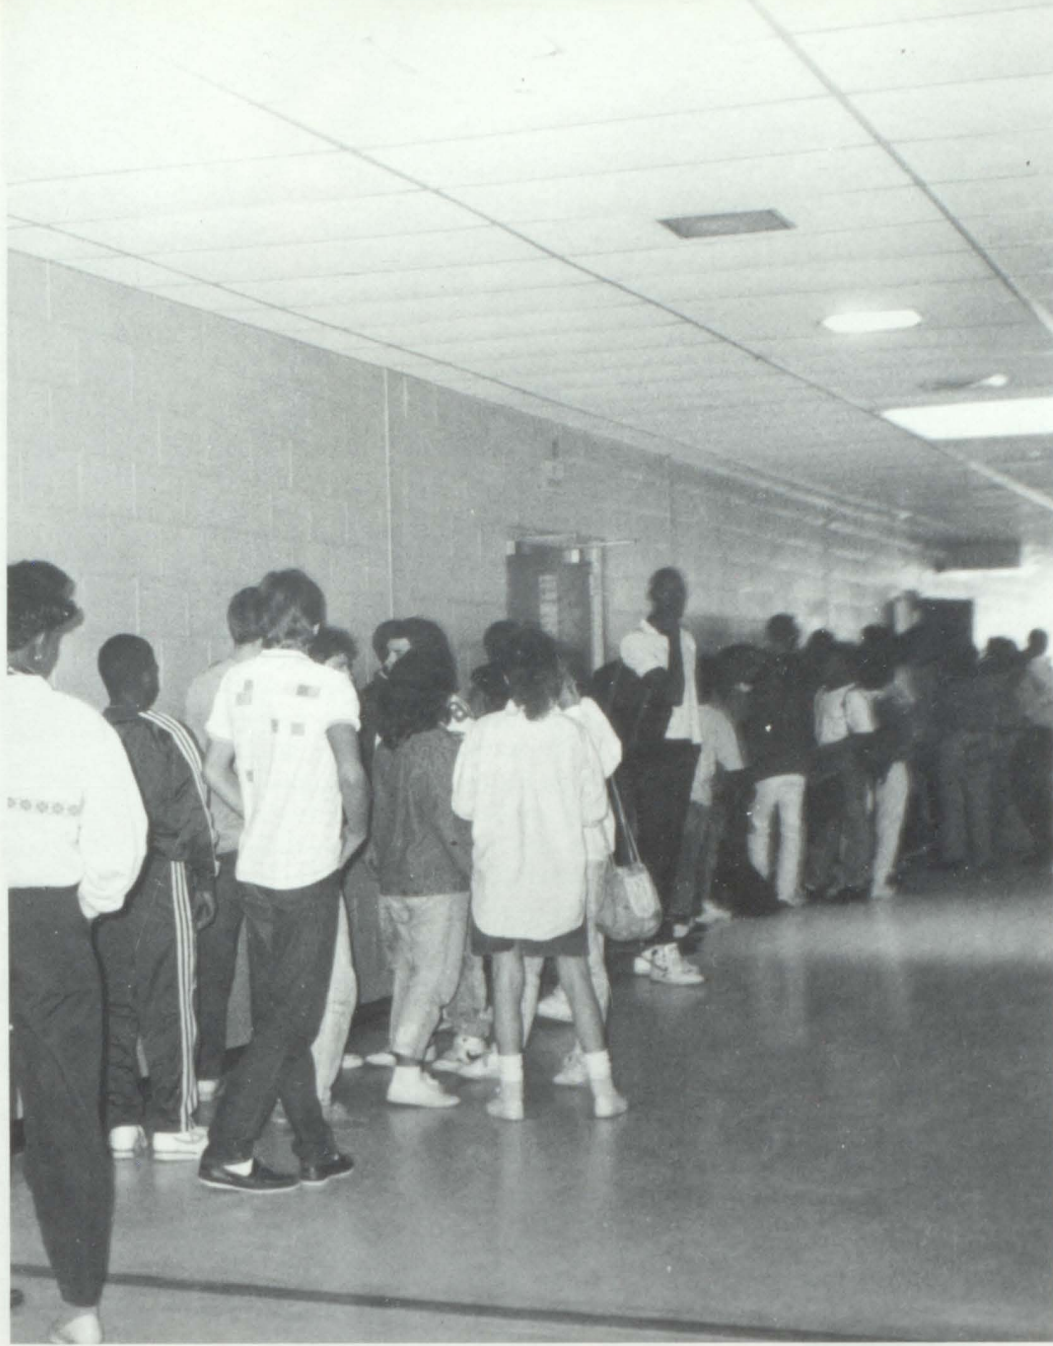

A second line was finally opened in both cafeterias in mid-November. (Copy/design by C. Hoges, G. Seabrooks).

Keen spirit competition between juniors and seniors, prom dresses and tuxes, successful bonfire made

Homecoming events sparkle

Football season may have been over, but the fun was just starting as the final game was designated as Homecoming.

Students took part in the traditional costume days. Monday was '50's Day and Twin Day; Tuesday was Class Color Day and Celebrity Day; Wednesday was College Jersey Day and Sports Day; Thursday was Dress-Up Day and Career Day; and Friday, the game day, was School Colors Day.

The most unusual day was Dress-up

Day because a number of seniors decided to really do it right. The girls wore prom dresses and the boys wore tuxedos or suits.

During the week, DECA sponsored its traditional Spirit Chain race between the classes. Once again, the real race was between the juniors and seniors, with the juniors coming out on top. Third place went to the sophomores, and the freshmen came in last.

The official announcement of the Spirit Chain winner was made during the Thursday night pep rally bonfire. Unlike the last few years, organizers considered the bonfire a success.

Friday night, of course, was the big night as the fans went to the game in big numbers to cheer the football team on and to see the crowning of the Homecoming Court. The evening was bittersweet. Although the court selections seemed to please the crowd, the Raiders fell 13-14 to the Baldwin Braves. (Copy/design by J. Battle).

Treated like royalty

Homecoming is always a night to remember.

After a week of campaigning, looking for the right dress or the best tux, the practices, and the nerves, it was the night they all had waited for.

Who would win?

Stomach butterflies and pounding hearts testified that it would all be over in less than a moment. The suspense began to build as the announcements began.

Chris Veal and Sonja Hill were named Mr. and Miss Northeast.

Chris said, "I was overjoyed. When I heard my name, it was like a dream come true."

Sonja said, "It was a thrill to be named Miss Northeast. I feel that I can represent Northeast very well."

Keith Moffett and Joanna Robinson were named Mr. and Miss Senior.

Journalia Clowers and Precious Lindsey were first and second runners-up to Miss Northeast; Anissa Jones and Consuela Alexander were first and second runners-up to Miss Senior, respectively. Rodney Moore was first runner up to Mr. Northeast.

Myrja Johnson was named Miss Junior. Chastity Taylor and Latrice Durham were first and second runners-up, respectively.

Crystal Wilder was named Miss Sophomore; Tomekia Pertillo was first runner-up.

Charmekia Pertillo was named Miss Freshman; Gayla Jones was first runner-up.

Organizations

Finding the right crowd to join is a big part of high school life. Sharing interests in common makes for solid friendships.

Being a part of an organization like the Math Club, DECA, or the band adds spice to the otherwise dull everyday routine. There are special places to go and special things to do when you are part of a busy organization. Sometimes even the terminology involved sounds like a foreign language to those who are not "in the know!"

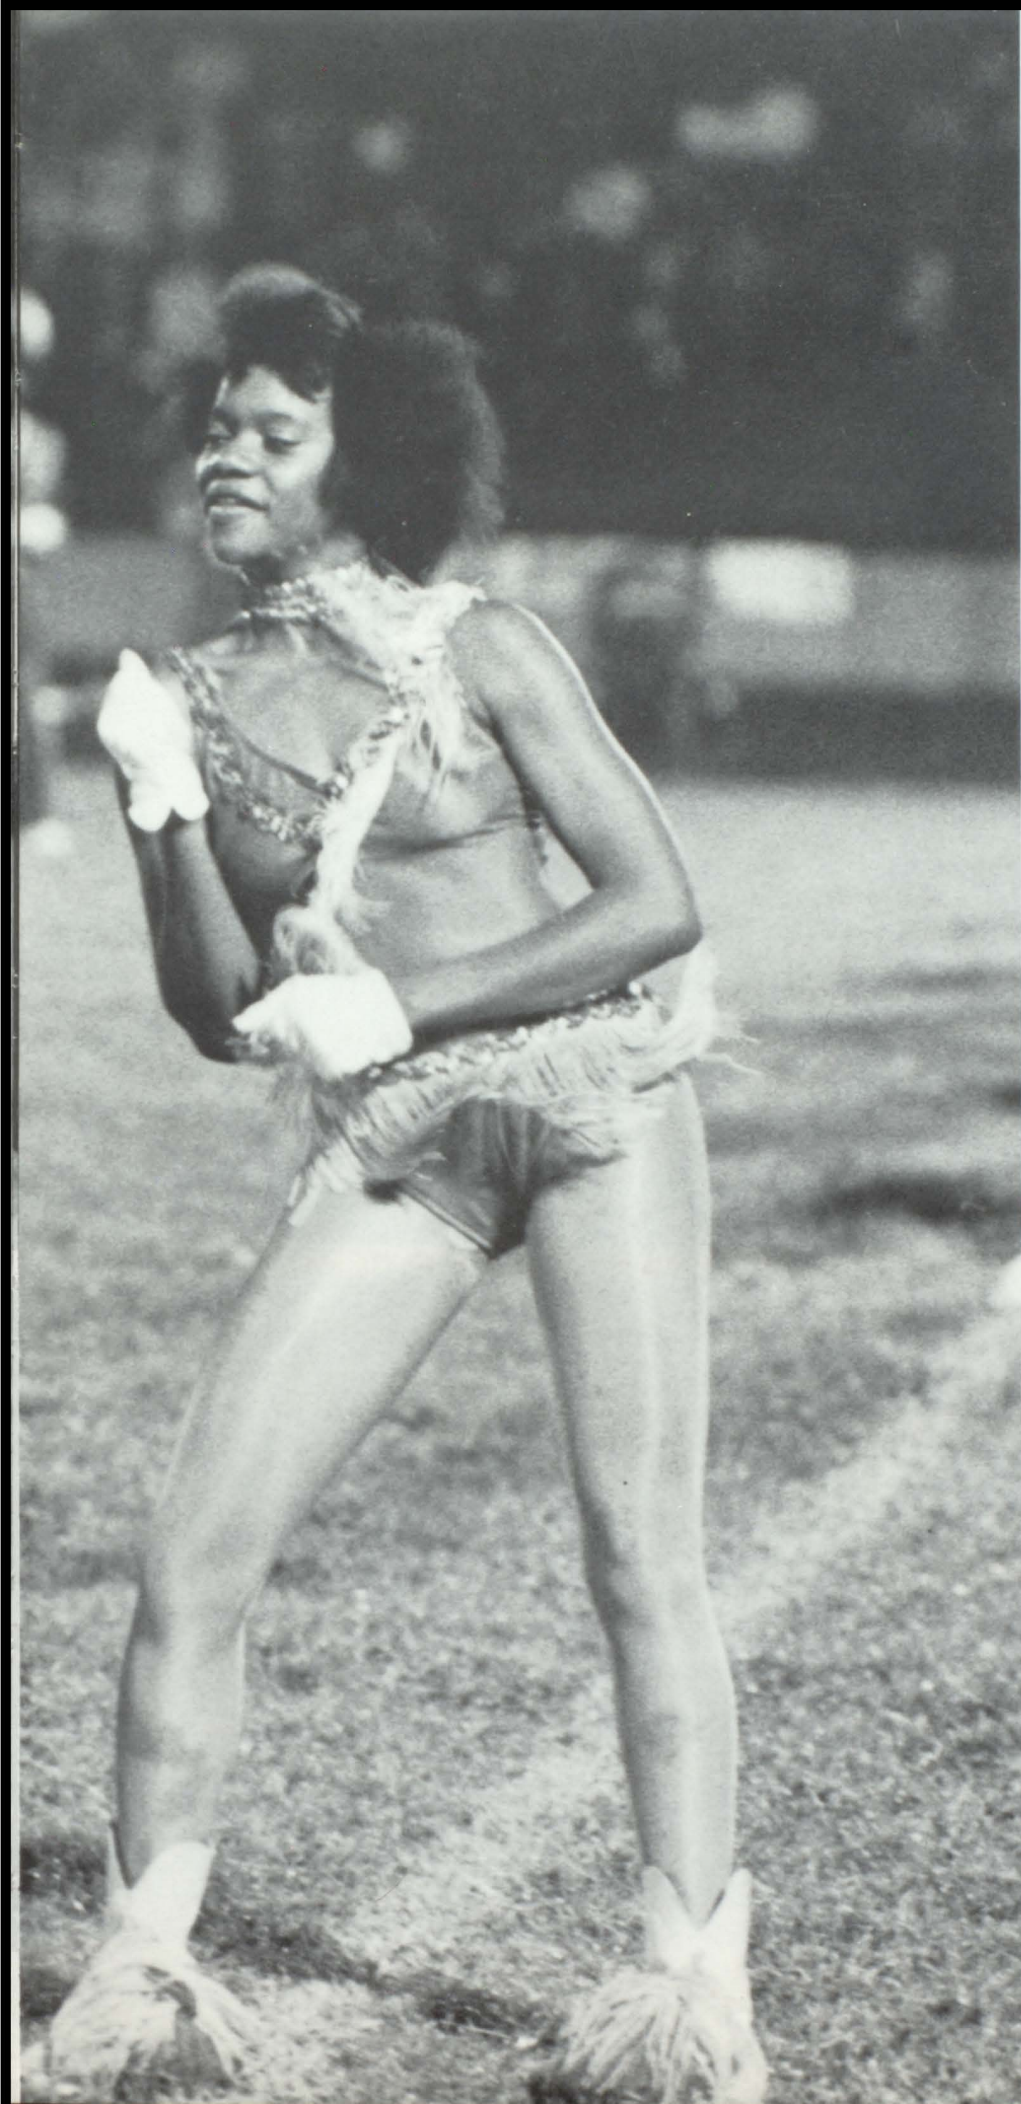

With the brand new Y-Club and Northeast Diplomats, students even had a chance to chart new territory.

Diplomats, Spirit Club, Student Council, Y-Club

Putting NE's best foot forward

Leadership, public relations, and character are the three goals of four organizations — the Northeast Diplomats, the Spirit Club, the Student Council, and the Y-Club.

An outgrowth of a marketing class project taught by Mrs. Joyce Robinson, and a dream by an alumnus, Mr. Harold Lee Perdue, Jr., the Northeast Diplomats were created to serve as a sort of high-profile public relations group in the community. Their mission was to improve the community's perception of Northeast.

One project was to promote the movie White Girl, an anti-drug movie produced by Tony Brown, which also served as a fund-raiser for the Douglass Theater renovation project.

Other projects involved working with the Macon Arts Alliance, the Macon Heritage Foundation, the Atlanta Pops Concert in the Cherry Blossom Festival, the Harriet Tubman Museum, the Museum of Arts and Sciences, the Macon-Bibb County Humane Society, and the Grand Opera House. Members were hand-picked through a rigorous application and review process.

All participants were in the upper 20% of their graduating class and were involved in many school activities and honor societies.

The Spirit Club's primary activities were painting banners for the football and basketball games and promoting attendance at athletic events. The Spirit Club's advisers are Mrs. Kathi Tyson and Sgt. Gordon Williams.

As always, the Student Council planned and produced Homecoming and handled the elections of class officers, Senior Superlatives, and Who's Who. They also collected $227.34 in donations to the Make-a-Wish Foundation and a trunkload of groceries in the canned good drive at Thanksgiving. Student Council advisers were Ms. Nova Bruss and Mrs. Claudia Hutchings.

In its first year, the Y-Club ran the concession stand at games and participated in the Toys for Tots program. They also gave magazines to the Law Enforcement Center. Advisers for the Y-Club were Mrs. Yvonne Gee, Ms. Esther Riley, and Mr. Reece Morrison. (Copy/design by J. Stephens, K. Dancy).

Academic Clubs Extend learning

Academic clubs give students an opportunity to extend knowledge beyond the classroom.

The National Honor Society is an academic organization which is open by invitation only to students on the basis of their grade point averages and on character, leadership, and service. Senior members included Charles Allen, Michael Braswell, Andrea Gordon, Stuart Nelson, Monica Sampson, Beverly Hill, Precious Lindsey, Keisha Lowe, and Angela Nelson. Junior members included April Coley, Benjamin Edwards, Nathan Lewis, Shannon Stanton, and Donna Walker. The advisers were Mrs. Jeannetta Echols and Mrs. LaMerle Loveland.

The Academic Bowl team participated in county meets at Central and in another meet at Georgia Southwestern.

The Science Club sponsored a Science Bowl, the Science Fair, and a trip to Washington, D.C.. Advisers were Mrs. Gwen Booker and Mrs. Gail Lewis.

The Math Club participated in the Math Teacher Appreciation holidays, Math Olympics, and the trip to Washington with the Science Club.

The French Club decorated the doors of the vocational office for Christmas. They planned a picnic in the spring.

Vocational Clubs

Build job skills

Vocational organizations give students in vocational courses a chance to build their job skills even further.

Coordinated Vocational Academic Education's Project Success had VOCA members building planters to give to the Town and Country Convalescent Center. VOCA trained members in job-seeking skills. Advisers are Mrs. Gwendolyn Crafter and Mr. Chris Campbell.

Future Homemakers of America/Home Economics Related Occupations (FHA/HERO) members Adriana Jackson, Jerel Washington, Eric Simmons, Natasha Woodford, Gregory Miller, and Orlando Dean attended the district meeting in Fort Valley in October.

FHA/HERO members sold roses for Valentine's Day, cookbooks and baked products. They adopted grandparents at the nursing home.

FHA/HERO trained students for competition in home economics. Mrs. Bernice Williams is the FHA/HERO adviser.

Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA) attended a leadership conference in November, had several guest speakers, and again provided a tax-preparation service for those with simple returns.

FBLA trained students for competition in office skills. Mrs. Linda Little is the FBLA adviser.

Student Publications

Provide outlets

What does it take to be a journalist? Whether the publication is the literary magazine, the newspaper, or the yearbook, the tasks that are involved are similar.

Publications primarily involve writing. Students are given the opportunity to express themselves in journalistic or creative writing. Publications also involve packaging the student writing with art and photography in some sort of pleasing design.

With the magazine, students are invited to submit original poems, features and artwork. Staff members select the best work and arrange it in the Salmagundi.

The Golden Star newspaper and Valhalla yearbook try to record a history of the year, covering events with stories and photos.

All three publications are prepared and designed according to the latest guidelines from organizations like the Georgia Scholastic Press Association (GSPA), Southern Interscholastic Press Association (SIPA), Columbia Scholastic Press Association (CSPA), and National Council of Teachers of English (NCTE).

When the publications are complete and distributed, they are entered in competitions sponsored by these organizations.

The 1988 Valhalla received a first place from GSPA and a Superior from SIPA.

The Salmagundi received the award for excellence from NCTE, a first place rating (with a mark of distinction in concept) from CSPA, an All-Southern from SIPA, and a first place from GSPA.

Raider Band

Brings work, pride

Have you ever dreamed of being in your school's band and being able to go to the football games and perform at halftime? The Northeast Raider Marching Band could make that dream a reality.

Being in the marching band

takes a lot of hard work.

Freshman Eric Lindsey said, "It is very fun to be in the band, but you have after-school practice every day except the day of the game. After all the hard work is over, it is fun."

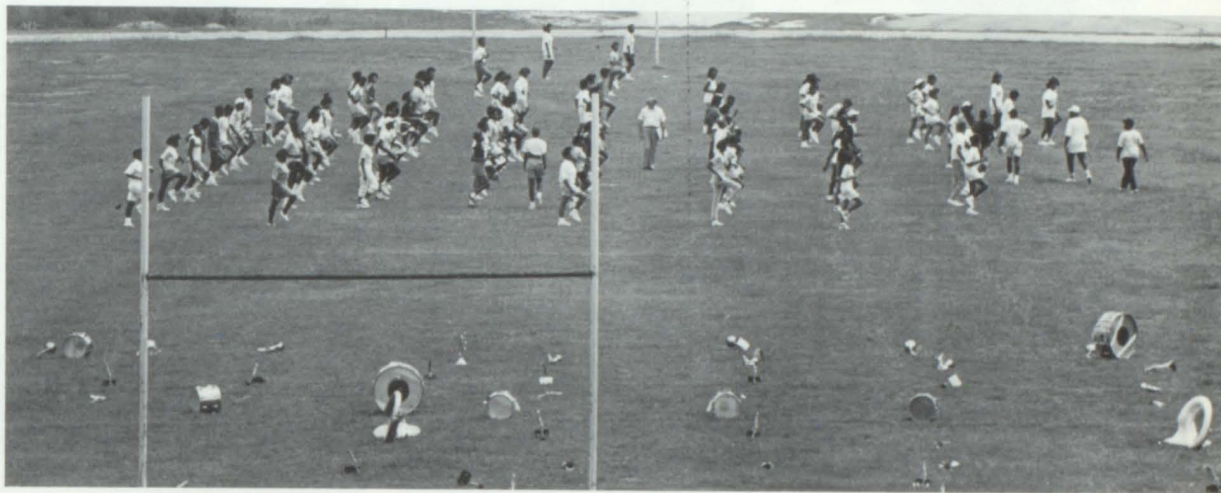

This year's band is led by three female drum majorettes for the second year in a row. (Don't you think women's lib is great?)

The band participates in many activities and parades.

The band has marched in the Florida A&M (FAMU) homecoming parade in Tallahassee, Florida; Macon's Christmas parade; the St. Patrick's Day Parade in Savannah; and the Macon Cherry Blossom Parade.

Plans to march in the performance and field competition of the American Music Festival in March fell through because of the snow.

BAND —

For many of the band members, the most important night of the year is the halftime show at the Southwest game. Sophomore Tomekia Pertillo said, "You really get to do a lot of dancing and having fun. You get to compete against Southwest, and see who is better at marching, dancing, and playing."

"It is very hard work coming up to the Southwest show because we need everyone's cooperation, time, and energy. It gets very frustrating during this time because you have drum majors, section leaders, band officers, and (of course) the seniors trying to tell everyone what to do," said senior Precious Lindsey, president of the band.

Junior Carlos Spry said, "After the halftime show, you are very proud of yourself for doing the best that you possibly can."

Senior Journalia Clowers said, "It is fun being in the band, but it's tougher being a Jazzette because we have to learn all the band steps plus our own routines!" (Copy/design by M. Moore.)

members of the Advanced Chorus and Show Chorus performed solos and duets for the lunch crowd in the Lasseter lunchroom.

Choral groups performed in concert with the band at Christmas.

At the Choral Festival in March, the chorus rated a 3 on a scale of 1 to 5, with 1 being the best possible rating.

JROTC

Develops good citizens

Overcoming obstacles, having to prove leadership and developing self-discipline are all a part of becoming a good citizen in one's community. But where can a young person go to learn how to develop these traits?

One of the best places is right here at Northeast in the Junior Reserve Officers' Training Corps (JROTC).

Entering JROTC, one usually has certain expectations. Many cadets admit that JROTC is a lot harder than they imagined, but the results are worth it.

One proud cadet said, "I'm a better person emotionally, and I feel that I can accomplish anything, since I now have more skills and determination."

Weekly physical training exercises include the obstacle course and the rappelling tower, as well as calisthenics.

Sports

It was another so-so year in fall and winter sports. Teams without super talent worked long hours to do their best to uphold the Raider and Raiderette tradition. What they lacked in natural talent, they made up for in sweat and determination. For the most part, it paid off in successful seasons.

Varsity girls' cross country made it to state again, as did several members of the wrestling team. The varsity girls' basketball team got as far as the sectionals.

The best team on campus, by far, was the ninth grade girls' basketball team. They easily took the city championship, winning all of their games after an opening loss.

Soccer, new to Bibb County interscholastic competition, was scheduled to debut in the spring. (Copy/design by R. Ross).

Football

Quick start makes promise season doesn't fulfill

The season started out so well.

With three quick wins at the start of the season, long-suffering Raider football fans thought this season might be different. After suffering through a 1-9 season last year, the early victories gave the fans a chance to be excited and look for a better season.

Senior Lynn Kemp said, "When we won our early victories, I thought the team had really improved, and the team would continue their good streak."

Unfortunately, the early optimism faded when the team got into the tougher end of the schedule, including a heartbreaking one-point loss at Homecoming. While the Raiders were nearly always within reach of their opponents at halftime, the Raiders' perennial problems of inexperience and too many players playing both offense and defense took their toll.

The Raiders never gave up on themselves, but they dropped the final seven games on the schedule, including a heartbreaking one-point loss at Homecoming.

Senior Dexter Street said, "This football season was not as good as I thought it should have been. Even though we won three games in a row, we had the potential to be much better. I think our team just really learned how to win this year, and next season the Raiders should be unstoppable." (Copy/design by T. Daniely, J. Parham).

Softball

Team steadily improving over previous seasons

After two seasons of two wins each, the Raiderette softball players made a dramatic comeback, going 8-7.

Assistant Coach Judy Whitaker said, "It was a great year, a great team. Even when they were behind, they came through. They are a nice bunch of girls. I'm looking forward to next year."

Of the eight wins, three each came against Central and Baldwin, and one each against Southeast and Northside. The Raiderettes lost all four times against Southwest, both times against Warner Robins, and once to Northside.

Junior Angela McCormick, who missed the season due to a serious injury, promised a better year next year.

Cross Country

Led by sensational Jackson, Raiderettes return to state

Led by sensational freshman Latissimus Jackson, the Raiderettes went 8-1 before finishing tenth in the state cross country meet in Marietta.

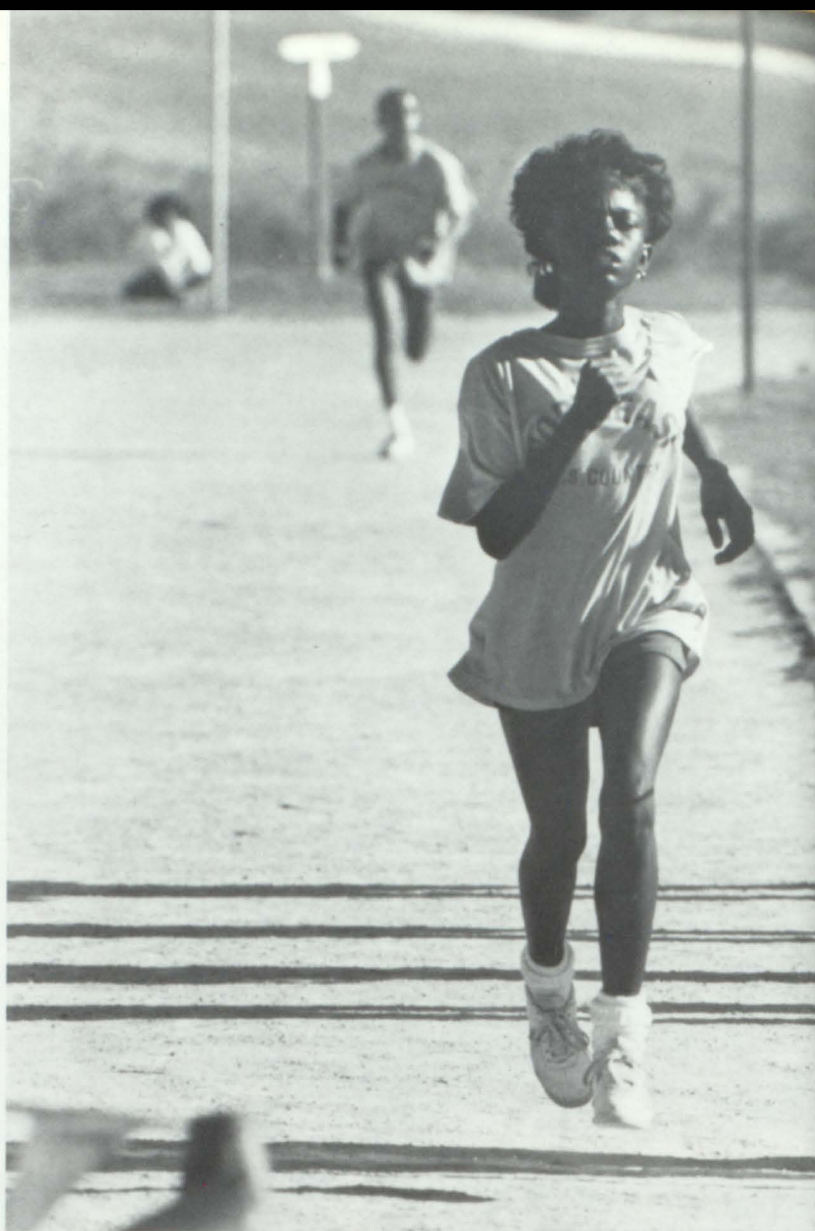

Jackson finished first in the region 2-AAAA meet; first in four regular season meets and second in three others. Her best time ever over a three-mile course was 19.12 minutes, which was a new school record, breaking the old mark of 19.38, held by Tijuana Hillman from two years ago.

Jackson said, "I was inspired to run by Coach Howell at Appling (Middle School). I plan to continue running as I complete my high school years."

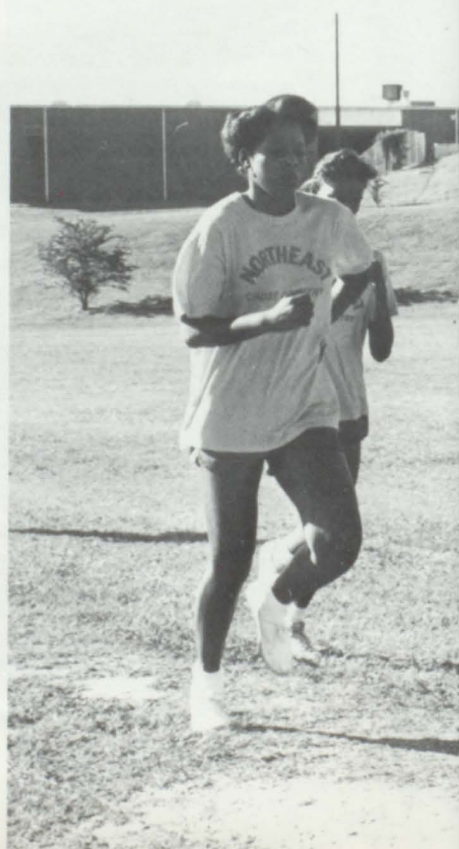

The boys' team, which managed to win two meets last year, struggled all season, finishing 0-9. (Copy/design by G. Seabrooks).

Raiders fall in first round of subregion tournament

Two heady seasons in the Final Four were a hard act to follow for a team which lost four out of five starters to graduation.

Although the team played hard and well most of the time, they were only able to finish with nine wins, a big drop from 22 of a year ago.

The Raiders lost to the first-year Southeast Warriors, 66-77, in the opening round of the subregion.

One bright spot in the season was that veteran junior center Elvin Stewart, the only starter returning from last season, was ranked in the Macon Telegraph and News Top 20 all season. (Copy/design by T. Daniely, J. Parham).

Raiderettes lose to Beach in sweet sixteen round

Led by senior Monita O'Neal and junior Yolanda Chester, both ranked all season in the Macon Telegraph and News Top Twenty, the Raiderettes fought their way out of the toughest subregion and region in the state only to lose in the first round of the state sectionals to Beach of Savannah.

Other than the loss which ended the season, the worst point in the season was the record string of four straight losses in the middle of the season.

Although the team stayed alive for several games after that, the emotional high point of the season was the win over Baldwin, the defending state champion, in the last regular season game.

Head Coach Alvin Cope-land said, "This season was much better than we expected."

Junior Yolanda Chester said, "We played more as a team and won more games than anyone expected us to." (Copy/design by J. Riley).

Wrestling

*Seven wrestlers go to state;
Bowers takes fourth place*

Winning the state championship was the goal of the varsity wrestlers from the beginning. Although no one made it quite that far, seven qualified to wrestle in the state meet, and junior Jimmy Bowers placed fourth in the 125-lb. weight division.

In his third year, Bowers is considered a team leader and the most valuable wrestler by Head Coach Fred Persley. Placing first in the West Laurens and state area tournament and second in the Southwest Invitational tournament, his season record was 27-3; his career record stands at 77-7. Bowers has had more pins than any other Raider wrestler for two years in a row, this year registering 25.

Other wrestlers who participated as state finalists were Bernard Rozier, Eddie Mitchell, Harold Crafter, Kacy Clowers, Eddie Peacock, and Ron Pitts. Two others who made important season contributions were Marcus Smith and Dexter Street.

Coach Fred Persley said, "As a coach, you are never satisfied unless you win every match in every weight, and go undefeated. We were a young and inexperienced team this year, so I expected the young men to make mistakes. I hope that we learned from our errors and will grow closer and stronger as individuals and as a team. I can only say that our best efforts will be in the future." (Copy/design by L. Gibbs).

Cheerleaders

Yelling, cartwheels, dancing just part of the responsibility

Cheerleaders, whether B-team or varsity, are the ones who support the team by getting the crowd into the game. People who have never been to a game where there were no cheerleaders probably don't realize how much they really do contribute.

While everyone sees what cheerleaders do during the games, many do not know what else the cheerleaders do. They have fund-raisers to pay for their uniforms and to go to the summer camp where they polish their skills. (At last summer's camp, the squad won awards for 100% Participation, Most Improved, and Most Spirited.)

They also make banners for the games and spirit boosters for the team on a regular basis. They practice for hours after school throughout the week on days when there is no game.

The varsity cheerleaders even sponsored a small-scale cheerleading camp for some little girls who are recreation department cheerleaders.

Varsity captain April Coley said, "I encourage other young ladies to be cheerleaders in the future. It's hard work, but it's fun and rewarding."

B-team captain was Lisa Saunders. (Copy/design by K. Dancy, J. Stephens).

B-team Sports

Football, girls' basketball have winning seasons

A victory over football-powerhouse Warner Robins in their first game started the B-team football season off with a bang. Another win over Baldwin and splits with Southwest and Central had the campus humming about the 4-2 season.

Coach Walter Daniely said, "I feel this year's B-team is better than those in recent years. We hope we are building a great football program at Northeast, pleasing to the students, faculty, and community as well."

The B-team girls' basketball team also had an outstanding season, finishing 8-5, while the boys struggled to 5-8. (Copy/design by K. Willis, M. O'Neal).

Ninth Grade Sports

Girls' basketball team takes city championship trophy

After an initial loss against Central in which they only scored 21 points, the ninth grade girls' basketball team reeled off 12 straight wins to go 12-1 and win the undisputed city championship.

According to Coach Judy Whitaker, the opening loss made the team determined to win the rest of their games, and they did just that, including phenomenal 71-9 and 68-6 games against Southeast.

Meanwhile, the boys' ninth grade team was not quite as successful, finishing 5-8. Season high scoring for the boys was 87 points against Southeast, while the season low was against Baldwin with 32 points.

Boys' Coach Christopher Campbell named Michael Barron as most valuable player, averaging 25 points per game, and Branton Thomas, as most improved.

Academics

More than ever before, students found that academics came first at Northeast.

When students returned from summer vacation, they found that the official Honor Code, drawn up by a faculty/student committee last spring, was operational. For those who had always regarded cheating as wrong only if one got caught, living the Honor Code was a new reality.

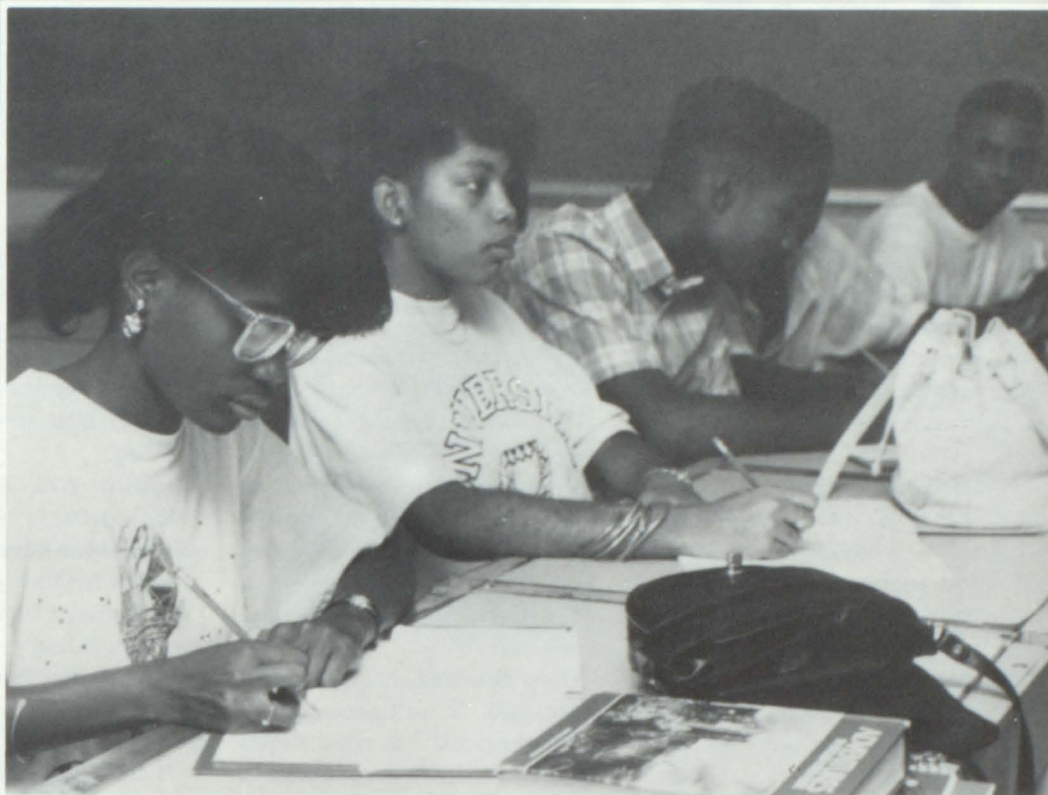

Implementing a dream of Mrs. L. W. Wimberly, Lasseter building principal, concerned faculty members volunteered to provide a seventh-hour tutoring service. More than fifty students who had failed courses fall quarter were recommended for the special program which paired instructors with individuals or small groups for a 45-minute session twice a week.

To stay on top of six classes, students, teachers, administrators, and parents worked together to achieve success. (Copy/design by Ramona Rhoden)

A matter of honor

Northeast establishes an honor code for all classes

Students returning to Northeast for the 1988-89 school year were met with a brand new Honor Code.

Mrs. Judy Fultz, English teacher, said, "Many teachers and students had expressed a concern about attitudes of students concerning cheating. As a result, the Honor Code was started."

It didn't really happen overnight. A committee of faculty and students, chaired by Mrs. Shirley Macklin, head of the English department, met throughout the spring of 1988, making recommendations to the faculty for the final form the code would take.

The actual pledge reads: I have neither given nor received information on this assignment.

When school began in August, teachers presented the Honor Code to their classes. It met with mixed reactions.

Sophomore Shlawnda Calhoun said, "Those who made it up had good intentions. It was developed to promote honesty, but sometimes I feel that I'm one of the few (if not the only one) who obeys it. Some students just lack a sense of morality, and an honor code won't affect them."

Freshman Latricia Basley said, "I think the honor code is a good idea and will work very well."

Eric Braswell, another freshman, said, "It isn't necessary."

Sophomore Laverne Harris said, "I think it's a good way to see if we are honest."

Sophomore Dewayne Brown said, "It's not okay, because people will cheat anyway."

Junior Nathan Lewis said, "I think the honor code is something that each teacher must enforce to the students. When some students go to college, cheating will not be tolerated."

Junior Shandrina Griffin said, "If your friend needs your assignment, you are going to give it to him."

Senior Ara Adams said, "Who's going to say they cheated? Someone very honest."

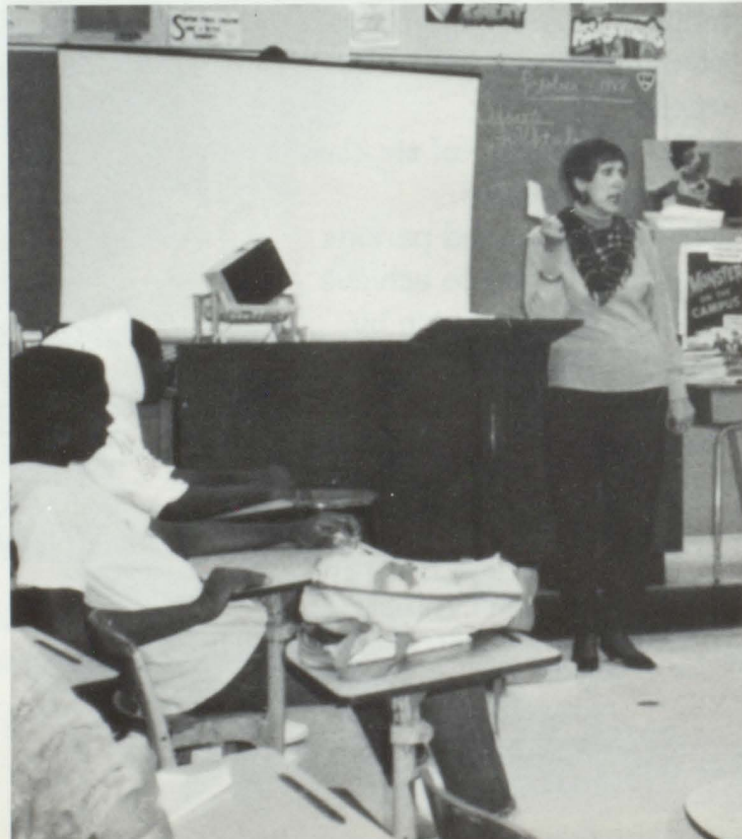

Senior Artiffaney Mosley said, "I think that it is good, but most people will use it just to make the teachers think it's true. There are some honest people, though."

"I think the honor code was long overdue. To some, cheating is a way of life," said Mrs. Gwyneth Lamon, math teacher. (Copy/design by K. Moffett).

Going the extra mile

Teachers volunteer for twice-a-week tutoring program

About twenty of the Northeast teaching staff volunteered for a special tutoring program which began near the end of fall quarter.

The program, which was conceived by Mrs. L. W. Wimberly, Lasseter building principal, was designed to help students who were having difficulty in their classes. Students were assigned to volunteering teachers in the same department for one-on-one or small group instruction on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Mrs. Gail Lewis, a volunteering science teacher, pointed out the value of the program, saying, "Some of the individual students cannot get that special help in class. The tutoring program has given me an opportunity to work with different students in a one-to-one situation."

Florrie Williams, who studied with Mrs. Lewis, said, "I think Mrs. Lewis is nice for helping me with my science."

Seniors, especially, seemed to appreciate the extra help. Senior Leon Watkins said, "The tutoring helped me a lot with my grades."

Another purpose of the tutoring program was to provide seniors with a way to prepare for the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT).

Mrs. LaMerle Loveland, who taught an SAT seminar, said, "The tutoring program gave me an opportunity to help seniors who wanted to improve their SAT scores. Several students came for help before the January tests." (Copy/design by V. Williams, D. Adams).

People

Raiders and Raiderettes are a special breed. We are proud of our school and its accomplishments. Even though healthy competition exists between classes and organizations, and even though occasional friction occurs between faculty members and students, we stand united when facing a common foe.

It doesn't matter whether it is just a ballgame, the latest bad publicity, or plans for the new magnet school. When confronted by outside influences, school spirit and pride always comes through.

While we might squabble over petty things, we face the world outside as a family!

BUILDING HOBBIES

Students develop skills for leisure time

Most students expect to "learn something" while in high school, but many find quite unexpectedly that, along with the reading, 'riting, and 'rithmetic, they have developed skills that can help them fill their leisure time as adults.

Classes emphasizing creative skills, physical fitness, handyman techniques, and so forth, which may have been just schedule-filling electives, will assume more importance in the adult years, when the factual knowledge learned fades from memory. (Copy by K. Dancy).

STUDYING FOR COLLEGE

College prep students really hit the books

A major step for some is the transition between high school and college life. Since almost day one in kindergarten, some students have been placed in "advanced" groups, told they were select, and were expected to act accordingly. Seeking goals that seemed unattainable to others, they chose honors classes.

Senior Stanley Stewart said, "We've been enriched with certain ideals that will hopefully pay off for us in the future."

Senior Melissa James said, "Advanced classes are a challenge to the mind and force students to think beyond the limitations and restraints of a regular class."

For those who wanted even more rigorous work, Advanced Placement classes were an option. AP classes were available in American History, English 12, and Calculus. (Copy by Marvin Hill, Michael Hill).

POLISHING SKILLS

Vocational classes provide real world skills

Vocational classes provide students with a variety of choices for learning entry-level skills for the working world.

There are courses to teach office skills, such as typing, filing, and accounting. Retail sales is the area of interest in Marketing/Distributive Education.

Hands-on skills in the trades like construction, masonry are also available. Transportation teaches students how to put engine motors together and how to make simple repairs. In industrial arts, students learn how to draw simple blueprints, how to read them, and how to build projects from them.

Learning skills in home economics teaches students how to manage a household or use the same skills in restaurants or child care.

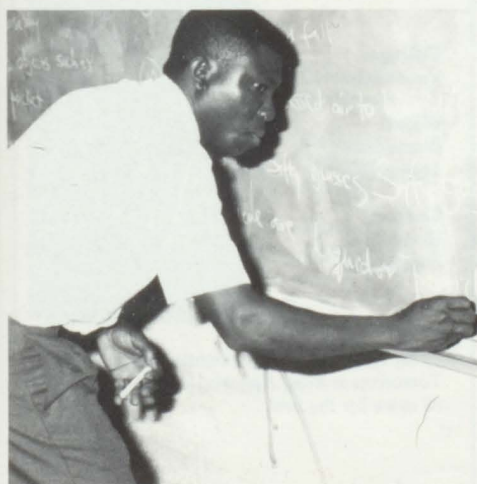

Several of the courses provide an early-release option in which students can earn academic credit for a parttime job. (Copy by K. Mullis, T. McCoy, J. Rudin).

SENIOR SUPERLATIVES

Faculty names 16 as best of Class of 1989

Sixteen seniors were selected by the Northeast faculty as Senior Superlatives — the best of the Class of 1989.

To be selected, a senior must have a 3.0 grade point average and be nominated by any member of the faculty. The magnitude of the honor was not lost on those receiving it.

"Being nominated gives me a sense of self-accomplishment. My goal is, and always has been, to excel in life. Therefore, receiving this honor guides me one step closer," said Kraig Collins.

Andrea Gordon said, "It is one of the highlights of my high school career. To be recognized by my teachers lets me know that my efforts to achieve my goals are appreciated and commended."

"I am very delighted to be a senior superlative. This makes me feel as though I really am the 'cream of the crop' of Northeast," said Angie Nelson. (Copy by L. Green; design by R. Stevenson; photos by J. Battle).

PAYING 'BIG BUCKS'

Senior year expenses take big bite out of pocketbook

Although it may not seem possible to the rest of us, some seniors may spend as much as $1,300 during their senior year.

"Payments are always due regular. Every time you think you are finished paying on something, it's time to start paying on something else, or finish paying on something," said Lekeysa Pauldo.

Senior Precious Lindsey said, "I feel frustrated. My pocketbook no longer has the burden of having any money in it."

The biggest single expenses by far are the senior trip ($395), senior portraits (averaging $200), and the prom (about $200). While these purchases are optional, most seniors shell out the money for them. Most seniors wisely purchased class rings as juniors (another $200). Other special senior expenses included the cap and gown (about $25), the senior memory book (about $28), and graduation invitations (about $30). Of course, seniors must make sure that they purchase a yearbook with all the trimmings ($28).

Add to that the normal costs of dating and staying in style, and the total really adds up. Senior Sidney Curry said, "I'm willing to pay $40 to take a girl out to the movies, then to Pizza Hut, including the gas money."

Seniors expected to pay their own way, get help from parents, or a combination of both.

Senior Kenneth Wilder said, "I plan to get my money by working hard and getting a little bit of Mom's."

"I plan on getting the money for my expenses from my mom and dad," said Roberta Dean. "They think it's too much to pay in one year, but they'll pay it."

"My parents would be glad to help me out, but I am very independent. Right now, I just don't want their help."

Senior Anissa Jones said that her advice to all underclassmen is to start saving money now. She said, "You should go looking for a job. By the time you are a senior, prices will have increased. If you aren't prepared, you'll be in an awful mess!"

Michael Braswell said, "I think this school should have senior loans!"

Some seniors are philosophical about the high cost of being a senior.

Journalia Clowers said, "I feel that if you really want it, then you shouldn't have any complaints about it."

Senior Angela Rooks said, "Being a senior is great, and you do have to pay a lot of money, but it's worth it. You'll only get to graduate from high school once." (Copy by M. Moore).

MATCH CLASS OF '89, IF YOU CAN!

Seniors offer practical advice to the classes which follow them in the 1990's

Something to think about and ponder over is advice from those older and wiser than us. Seniors are always anxious to pass along some practical advice to those who will follow them.

Senior Melissa James said, "Getting your education is important. Stay out of trouble and you'll go a long way."

Michelle Smith said, "I would advise underclassmen to come to school to learn. Learning is what they must do, so they shouldn't get discouraged when they're having a tough time with a subject."

Setting goals early can be profitable too. Senior Andrea Gordon said, "Be true to yourself and try to reach your dreams, no matter how big they may seem."

Kraig Collins said, "Never give up the goal to become the best at what you do. Times may become difficult, but overcoming the difficult times will bring out the best in you."

"Never get hung up with the wrong crowd, and always do your work. Achieve the goals you set for yourself," said Angie Nelson.

"Create some goals early and work toward them. Always work and try for the best for yourself. Reach your potential," said Monica Sampson.

Planning goals is not enough; you must achieve them.

Senior Kimberly Watkins said, "Do your best; strive for success, and never settle for anything less. Do your very best in all classes every year, because in the future you are really going to need them in order to go to some colleges."

"Take school seriously, no matter what your friends say," said Joanna Robinson.

Helen Harden said, "Study hard and be all that you can be so that you can become a supersonic senior. And upon reaching your senior year, set a good example."

Cynthia Brown wants all the underclassmen to do all their assigned work. She said, "Respect your teachers and your peers."

"Go for the gold," senior Artiffaney Mosley said. "Don't settle for anything less. The better you make the effort, the better the effect. Always remember God makes everything possible."

Becoming a Super Senior isn't easy. Terrence Cooper said, "Underclassmen, work your hardest, because being a senior is not that far away."

Carolyn Bivians said, "Being a super senior is easy; staying that way is a different story. Don't put on an act to look good. What good is looking good if it's not for real?"

Seniors have a special sense of school spirit. Kelli Wright said, "Keep your grades up, but, most of all, have the spirit of a Raider."

Sidney Curry said, "Just keep a lot of spirit and try to have fun as well as doing your work."

Crystal Evans said, "Have school spirit. Behave yourself."

"Do what you are told, stay out of trouble, and always show your class spirit," said Yolanda Grant. (Copy by L. Gibbs.)

LEAVING 'HOME' ON THEIR MINDS

As seniors approach graduation ceremonies, sentimental memories surface

As graduation ceremonies loomed larger on the horizon, thoughts of the seniors were inevitably drawn back to memories of four years at Northeast.

"My fondest memory," said Greg Thomas, "was catching a touchdown pass against Baldwin my freshman year."

Tina Pitts was especially fond of having won Miss Basketball last year as a junior.

Ernest McCrary, a basketball player, said, "I'll always remember beating out our great rivals, the Southwest Patriots, last year."

Terrence Cooper said, "Coming to Northeast as a freshman was the greatest honor ever."

"At first it was pretty rough, but as time went on, it became a lot easier, and I started to enjoy it," said Amy McKinney.

Senior Theresa Singleton said she feels that Northeast was a second home. "I will be very sad to leave, because I grew up at Northeast."

There were other sad memories, too, of the deaths of Paul Snell, Amonda Thomas, Yolanda Whisby, and former students Gilbert Clowers and DeWayne Gray.

As discussions continued over restructuring Northeast as a magnet school, seniors also began to consider what made Northeast the school it was.

Senior Andrea Gordon said, "It's the combined personality of the students, faculty and parents that makes Northeast the school it is. We strive to be the best in everything we do and our personality shows this to everyone who sees us. They also feel our sense of pride."

"The students make the school, along with the hard work, patience, determination, and cooperation of the faculty," said Candida Finney.

Their thoughts, however, were mostly for the future.

Joe Morris was excited. He said, "I feel great, because I'm going to a higher level of learning."

Michelle Pitts had some misgivings. She said, "I am ready to graduate, but at other times, when I sit down and think about it, I'm scared to enter into the real world. I've been in school for twelve years, and I'm afraid of failing on my own."

Amy Reese said, "I really feel good about graduating. I feel I can go out into the world and make the best of myself. I also feel that I am both mentally and academically prepared."

Chiquita Hill said, "It's a dreadful thought — leaving Northeast, but you don't stay a child forever." (Copy by G. Seabrooks, C. Hoges)

MAKING PLANS FOR THE FUTURE

As their senior year ends, seniors begin to make important life decisions

As the final days of the school year crept slowly by, most seniors made big decisions about their futures.

A number of students planned to further their education.

Ylencia Butler said, "I plan to attend college. My reason for going is to be successful and live a comfortable life."

Senior Towanna Durham said, "I think college is a very important step in your life. You should be very careful before you make that decision. College is not for everyone."

Senior Eddie Mitchell said, "Everyone needs to go to a college for the educational challenge, so it will help them in the long run to get a good-paying job."

Tonya Jones said, "I feel everyone should go to college as soon as possible, because the only way to find a good job now is with a good education."

A number of seniors decided to go to college close to home. Allen Banks planned to go to Morris Brown to study medicine; Michael Braswell planned to go to the University of Georgia. Michell Glover planned on a mass communications major at the University of South Carolina.

Some students decided to take advantage of other post-secondary opportunities.

Angela Rooks said, "I'm planning on going to a vo-tech school to study cosmetology and business management."

A few seniors were planning on early marriages. "I plan to be married in five years, but I don't plan to marry the first man I fall in love with. I have to talk to a lot of guys first to decide what type I like," said Rhonda Ross.

Others were more interested in getting started in their careers.

Janice Moore said, "I want to get settled down with a good job and a nice home first, then I will think about marriage and having a family."

Lisa Koch said, "I want to play the field a little bit longer."

Some seniors made plans to go into the service immediately after high school like Raymond Swinson.

A good many seniors have set some long-range goals.

"In five years I see myself with my own mortician business. I also plan to be married and have the things that I didn't have as a child," said Chiquita Hill.

"I see myself in five years starting at the bottom of the career ladder and beginning to climb my way to the top," said Michelle Smith.

Teresa Finney said, "In five years I will be married to a wonderful man who is in the Navy right now. I love him dearly, he loves me the same."

"I see myself in five years as an executive of a big corporation," said Kwanjaklyn Anthony.

Stanley Stewart said, "In five years I will be coming out of my undergraduate work, hopefully going into my career choice and setting a pace for success." (Copy by K. Mullis, T. McCoy, J. Rudin, J. Parham, T. Daniely).

WHO'S WHO

Senior class elects 9 'favorites' categories

Who's Who is the selection of class favorites chosen in nine categories by vote of the senior class.

The Class of 1989 nominated candidates during supervision Feb. 13-15. A 2.0 grade point average was required. Voting took place Feb. 17. Campaigning was excluded, due to lack of time.

One unusual feature of this year's results was that two seniors, Dexter Howard and Rhonda Green, won two categories. (Copy/design/photos by J. Battle).

MOST SCHOOL SPIRIT was one of two categories won by Rhonda Green and Dexter Howard. Rhonda said, "As students we must realize that Northeast is not just a school building, but each and every one of us." Dexter said, "I feel that if you choose to attend Northeast, you should at least uphold its name."

MOST ATHLETIC were Monita O'Neal and Hubert Hogan. Hubert, who started playing sports around the age of 5 or 6, has played football, basketball, and baseball for Northeast. Monita has played basketball and has run cross country and track.

MOST POPULAR were Angie Nelson and Robert Timley (not pictured). Angie said, "Being nice and saying nice things makes one popular." (Photo by J. Battle).

WITTIEST were Joe Morris and Yvonne Stephens. "I love to make people laugh," said Joe, "because when others are happy, their warmth and cheer generate happiness to others and myself." Yvonne said, "I just like to have fun."

MOST TALENTED were Delphia Boynton and Jimmy Cook. Delphia said, "I've really been made to feel good about my music. The students and teachers of Northeast have made sure I had the confidence needed to stand before them and sing." Jimmy said, "I excelled in music because I try to improve my musical skills."

MOST SCHOOL SERVICE also went to Dexter Howard and Rhonda Green. Dexter said, "I think I was nominated for this because of my artistic ability. Many teachers call on me to do bulletin boards, etc." Rhonda, who excels in speech and drama activities, said, "I've learned that I must always go the extra mile to let others know than we do indeed have talent at this school."

BEST DRESSED were Renita Harrell and Terrence Cooper. Renita considered it an honor to win "considering (she) was running against a lot of girls who really know how to dress." Terrence said he finds his fashion ideas in GQ, by shopping, and by inventing original styles.

FRIENDLIEST were Tina Pitts and Rodney Moore. Tina only asks that her friends "not leave (her) in bad times." Rodney said, "A good friend is a person you can count on."

MOST LIKELY TO SUCCEED were Monica Sampson and Michael Braswell. Monica says success is "being content with doing your best;" while Michael says it is "an inner feeling obtained from personal fulfillment of your goals."

YEAR BRINGS NEW IDEAS, PROGRAMS

State evaluation, tutorials, Diplomats, magnet school in-service debut

A number of implementations, innovations, and plans were in the works for the 1988-89.

The new state instrument for evaluating faculty and staff brought the administrative team into every teacher's classroom for observation a minimum of four separate times. With a staff as large as Northeast's, that required a great deal of time. The administrators decided to divide the faculty into five groups, each of which was assigned to a particular administrator. In-service staff meetings to explain the instrument were mandated from higher authority.

Attempts to increase parental involvement met with some success. An energetic set of officers for the Parent-Teacher-Student Organization scheduled regular meetings, including an informational session just before the registration for 1989-90 school year. Parents were asked to pick up report cards at the end of fall and winter quarters and to meet and talk with their teenager's teachers at that time. So successful the year before, the policy met with somewhat less success in 1988-89.

A new seventh-hour tutorial program, in which teachers volunteered to tutor students academically-at-risk after school twice a week, was instituted near the end of fall quarter.

The Northeast Diplomats, a group of students selected to be ambassadors of Northeast to the community, was a big hit. Much positive public relations was generated by the activities of this group.

Finally, although the bond issue controversy droned on and threats of lawsuits clouded the future plans for Northeast to become a high-tech math/science magnet school, the in-service meetings began.

'JUST' SECRETARIES?

There's more to the job than most think

Just a secretary? There are five ladies at Northeast who have that title, but who are indispensable to the smooth operation of the high school.

As you might expect, the job of four of the secretaries involves typing reports and letters, answering the phone, dealing with a variety of needs of both students and teachers, and welcoming the public that visit the school.

Mrs. Edna Kaney has been the complex secretary for two years. Her main responsibility is to act as the secretary to Complex Principal G. Milton Dunaway.

Mrs. Kaney has worked for twenty years in the Bibb County school system. Before becoming the complex secretary, Mrs. Kaney was the secretary in the Mark Smith building. In the Smith building, she was the secretary to the assistant principal and was the bookkeeper for the complex.

Mrs. Ethel Glover is the secretary for Vocational Supervisor William Grant. She handles most of the paperwork involved with the vocational program.

Mrs. Glover came to Northeast when the vocational building was added. Before that, she was a secretary in the Maintenance Department for the school system.

Both Mrs. Kaney and Mrs. Glover work in the main office in the vocational building.

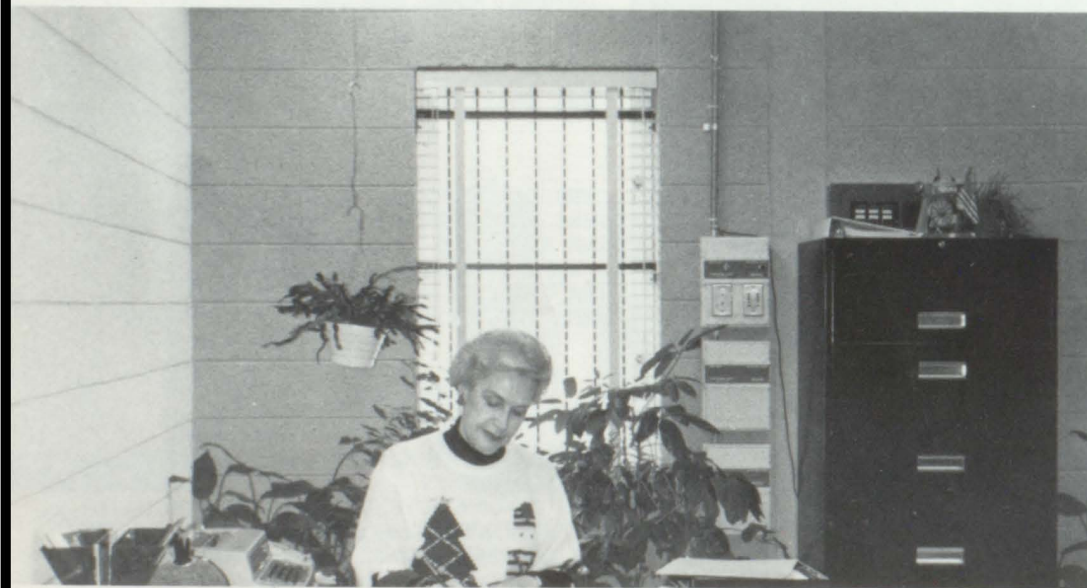

Mrs. Johnnie Stafford is the Lasseter building secretary. As secretary for Mrs. L. W. Wimberly, Lasseter building principal, she runs the day-to-day operation of the Lasseter office, especially student attendance.

Before taking the Lasseter position, Mrs. Stafford was the clerk in the media center.

Mrs. Juanita Wrye is the Smith building secretary. As secretary for Mr. Raymond Hughes, assistant principal of the Smith building, she runs the day-to-day operation of the Smith office, especially handling the financial records of the school.

Mrs. Wrye was the clerk in the registrar's office before taking the other position.

Mrs. Kathy Affolter is the secretary of the JROTC department. Of the five secretaries, Mrs. Affolter probably has the most varied job. In addition to the office duties, she sometimes helps to paint banners for the Spirit Club! (Copy/design by K. Dancy, J. Stephens.)

MACON'S FAMOUS CHERRY STREET is the site of the Cherry Blossom Festival the third week in March. Macon, known as the Cherry Blossom Capital, has more yoshino cherry trees than any other city in the United States. (Photo by R. Stevenson).

Community

Georgia's heart and soul is Macon, a city so rich in history that its entire business district is included on National Register of Historical Places. Unlike Atlanta, Macon was spared from General Sherman's destructive "march to the sea." A number of antebellum homes survive in the area, with the Hay House being the most spectacular.

Macon has a strong downtown retail area and growing shopping centers and malls in various parts of town. A massive renovation of the Macon Mall was completed just in time for Christmas.

With its numerous historical sites and a booming economy, Macon has a lot to offer the tourist. The Cherry Blossom Festival has consistently been listed among the top events in the country. In addition, by an act of the Georgia legislature, Macon will soon be the site of a Georgia Music Hall of Fame, featuring among others Macon natives like Otis Redding and Little Richard.
